The Haute Hut

Ladies, packing light doesn't mean you have to leave things out. These hut trip must-haves put the fun in functional, but still keep the weight down.

- Black Diamond Starlet Glis, Swift Boots, Fritsch Diamir Eagle 12 Bindings
The women's specific Starlet flexes according to lady's build, with a 100mm waist and semi-recessed tip to make for easy trail breaking on the way up, and effortless turns on the way down. Add the Fritsch bindings to ensure a gliding, natural stride with the performance and safety features of a high-end downhill binding. Pair with the Swift, BD's lightweight women's alpine touring boot, for maximum fun and efficiency. $669, $579, $479; blackdiamondequipment.com
- Outdoor Research Transcendent Beanie
Lightweight and compressible, the adjustable OR beanie is like a sleeping bag for your noggin! — with stretch stitching for a snug, fitting fit. When you consider the fact that you see body heat quickest from your head, it's really the most important place to insulate with 85+ fill down. $40; outdoorresearch.com
- Marmot Plasma 15
The engineering that went into Marmot's new Plasma 15 will impress even the toughest hottie in the hut. Waterproof and breathable, it's the warmest, lightest bag money can buy. Sewed in 800+ goose fill down, you'll stay cozy in temps as low as -15 degrees. But here's the kicker — the bag weighs less than two pounds. That's half the weight of most bags on the market. $469; marmot.com
- Rab Xenon Jacket
This puff compresses to fit inside its chest pocket and weighs only 11 ounces, leaving plenty of room in your pack without compromising warmth or water resistance, thanks to PrimaLoft One insulation. And that's not just lip service — the Xenon was tested in the extreme conditions of the Bugabo Range in British Columbia. $250; us.rab.uk.com
- Justin's Nut Butter Packs
Made in Boulder, 81 all-natural flavors ranging from maple almond to honey peanut to chocolate hazelnut, Justin's irresistible nut butters now come in single-serving squeeze packs. Perfectly packable, stash one in your pocket or bring a 10-pack to share. $1; justinanutbutter.com
- Smartwool T.M.L. SportKnit Full Zip
If you are packing light you need to be multifunctional. This cozy 100-percent merino piece serves double duty as a mid-layer or comfy sweater for hanging around the wood stove. $170; smartwool.com
- Clif Family Winery Climber Pouch
The Clif Family Winery, w/e in Clif Bar, makes all-terrain wine transport easy with the new Climber Pouch. Containing two bottles worth of either a crisp, unadorned Chardonnay, or a juicy Cabernet Sauvignon, the pouch weighs less than two glass bottles and has a 50% lower carbon footprint. $12; cliffamilywinery.com
